IN THE CLAIMS:

1. (Amended) A conferencing system comprising:
at least one client;
a conference server;
network connections between the conference server and the at least one client, wherein [each] the at least one client maintains a version of a shared portion of a display which is updated at a rate dependent on the network connections and loads and client computing speeds and loads, and wherein the conference server is capable of transmitting said shared portion of said display to two or more clients in parallel.

2. (Amended) A conferencing system comprising:
at least one client;
a conference server;
network connections between the conference server and the at least one client, wherein [each] the at least one client maintains a version of a shared portion of a data set which is updated at a rate dependent on the network connections and loads and client
